

Project 316 audio players provide believers in remote areas with foundational teachings that all believers need to have.

PROJECT 316 MINISTRY TEAM SPOTLIGHT

As the demand for audio players continues, it is essential to have volunteers on the ground who can partner with us and get the audio players into the hands of those who need them. Without them, this ministry wouldn't be possible. So we thank God for many of those who are in southeast Asia and part of the Project 316 Ministry Team. Hopefully, when the travel restrictions are lifted, especially in Laos and Vietnam, I will be able to make a trip and get to see them again. But at this point, even getting the audio players into Laos is proving rather difficult. There are over a hundred audio players in Thailand waiting to cross the border into Laos and into the hands of our anxiously waiting Hmong brothers and sisters.

Meet Hmong Ya

In this newsletter I would like to introduce you to Hmong Ya (not his real name) who has been instrumental in carrying the audio players into very remote areas of southeast Asia. I am amazed as to where he goes. He travels for days going high up into the mountains to visit believers in very isolated Hmong villages. These are places where foreigners would have an extremely difficult time getting into, not just because of the terrain, but because of the local political situations as well. Because of the nature of his ministry and the spiritual hunger of believers, he continues to request more audio players.

I first met him at the Yexusfest conference in Chiang Mai, Thailand back in 2017, along with several others who wanted to become part of the team and distribute audio players to the villages where they came from. I still have thousands of requests from them that have yet to be filled.

Hmong Ya and some of his team who help distribute audio players.

Hmong Ya is essentially a traveling preacher of the Gospel and teacher of God's Word. He is making an impact in the lives of many. He often sends me photos and videos of what he is doing. Last year, I was hoping to go to some of the villages where his pictures are taken, and to hear first hand how the players have been a blessing to others. But until then, we will have to settle for some form of video and text communications via the internet.

I'd also like to mention that up until now, the audio players have been uploaded by another (non-Hmong) believer who runs a computer shop business. Because of his schedule and the amount of time it takes to upload the players, it would take several weeks or months before he was able to upload the players. So we talked about how we could get the players uploaded quicker and wondered if Hmong Ya would be willing to learn how to do the uploading. Praise God that Hmong Ya not only agreed to this, but in his own words he said, "I am ready to do this because the Hmong still do not know much about God."
