The Core Doctrine of Eschatology

Gazing out at the spectacular view of the mountains, all you can see are the mountain peaks stretching far into the distance. The valleys between each peak are hidden. One of the key principles in understanding prophecy is to realize that when the prophets wrote, they only focused on the mountain top events that will take place in the future. The important events the prophets wrote about looked as if they would occur immediately one after the other, like those mountain peaks. This brought a lot of confusion for the prophets themselves and future generations of Jewish people as well. Even Jesus, when explaining that he had to suffer for our sins, confused the disciples. They did not realize that only after his death and resurrection will he become the everlasting king of Israel (and the world), which we should all be looking forward to. But with all the other events prior to his second coming, many believers today have a difficult time putting things together. But the study of these things shouldn't be neglected just because we may find it hard to understand. If we ignore all the prophetic portions of the Bible, we end up ignoring almost 1/3 of the entire Bible! Does this bring glory to God? Obviously not. Unfortunately, most believers are in this state of ignorance. This is one of the many reasons why the 316 Prophetic Seminar Series is being developed.

After talking with our Hmong brothers and sisters, both in the USA and south-east Asia, we've discovered that there are only a few that would be comfortable even conversing about the vast subject of eschatology, let alone

As far as we know there is nothing like this within the Hmong community of believers in southeast Asia. We praise God for what he has allowed us to do and what he will enable us to do as we move ever closer to the day of the rapture and the Lord's reign on this earth. Maranatha!

Prophetic Seminar Series on the Project 316 audio players, but we soon found out that, due to the type of material being covered, this would be very difficult to do. So, we are going to distribute these teachings via an on-line digital format. We also thought about distributing the series via print, but for some reason, the government of certain southeast Asian countries has restricted this kind of communication. However, if the same material is downloaded to a cell phone for example, there really isn't much of a problem. What's the difference? We can't figure it out. When these teachings are completed we will send them out to the Hmong leaders in southeast Asia so that they can, in turn, teach them to the local church that they minister in.

As with the compilation of the material found on the audio players, we believe the amount of Please pray...

- For all the 316 Prophetic Seminar teachings being developed and translated into Hmong.
- That believers will continue to be impacted by what they are learning on the Project 316 audio players.
- Praise God that a shipment of 150+ audio players have finally made it to their destination. They were lost within the postal system for several weeks.
